Date: 29 Jan 2015

1. Background to the organisation

THESMA (The Security Management Academy) is a limited company which has been established to offer vocational courses in the UK and at regional hubs on matters relating to security and crisis management. The training courses are offered to security industry professionals. The aim of the training is to provide an interactive learning environment for professional development. The organisation is licensed by ASIS International, the global association for security management professionals. ASIS International is based in the USA and is regarded as the world's foremost accrediting body for professional programmes in security management and associated activities. Certification support programmes are accredited by this body as are a range of Asset Protection courses for the international market. The programme areas include Security Management, Counter Terrorism, Kidnapping, Crisis Management, Maritime Security, Risk Analysis and associated areas of international concern.

The concept supporting THESMA is borne out of the Security Exchange Ltd Group (SELG); this is a Lloyds consultancy group largely dealing with blue chip insurers. There are also close relationships with Knights International Consultancy Ltd, which has an international reputation in the areas of interest to THESMA. The owner is also a consultant trainer to THESMA.

The organisation is in the process of negotiations with Bournemouth University and the University of Leicester, institutions with which there are very strong links. Currently, negotiations are proceeding with the University of Leicester to obtain accreditation of certain THESMA modules towards the University's relevant Masters programme.

2. Brief description of the current provision

The provision on offer is in three major areas:

- 1. SMART courses (Security Management and Risk Training), which operate on different levels according to the experience of the practitioner. Many of these courses are for practitioners who are seeking to attain the ISNI Certified Security Management Professional (CSMP) level 6 accredited diploma or other levels of this award. Some of these programmes are assessed by way of written assignments, whilst others are assessed by examinations. The programmes are usually of two weeks' duration.
- 2. RISC courses (Risk, Security and Continuity) are one week programmes designed to develop competencies in specialist areas. They include Environmental Design and Crime Prevention, Security Management, Security Surveying and Vulnerability Assessment, Crisis and Continuity Management, Investigations Management, Oil and Gas Sector Security Management, and Corporate Security Intelligence.
- 3. APC courses (ASIS) (Asset Protection Courses) programmes are offered under exclusive licence from ASIS International. THESMA has developed a variant of these courses for the international market. All courses offered range from programmes for beginners to those hoping to achieve a level 6 qualification.

This inspection was of the first training course offered by THESMA and was entitled Crisis and Continuity Management. It was designated as a five-day programme from 8-12 December 2014, for security and resilience specialists to development their understanding of risk, crisis and business continuity management. The programme was delivered by recognised specialists with previous experience and expertise in blue-chip organisations.

3. Inspection process

The inspection was undertaken by one inspector over the whole of the second day of the course. Discussions were held with all five delegates and there was also an examination of the carefully prepared course documentation which was used over the five-day period. An inspection was also made of the accommodation and learning resources available to delegates.
