PART A - INTRODUCTION

1. Background to the institution

Tobias School of Art and Therapy (the Institution) is a privately owned college and a registered charity. It provides courses in arts for health and well-being, and transpersonal arts in therapy. Established in 1979, the Institution moved to its current premises in East Grinstead, West Sussex in 1981.

The Institution aims to provide professional training in relation to the transformative power of artistic processes, for well-being, personal growth and social change.

Tobias School of Art and Therapy is led by Gillian David, Head of the Institution. She is supported by a General Manager who acts as Company Secretary, along with a Senior Lecturer and Office Manager. Overall governance of the Institution is provided by six Directors who form the Tobias Trust Board.

Originally founded in 1979, the Institution follows the developmental and spiritual philosophy known as anthroposophy. Established by Rudolf Steiner, an Austrian philosopher, playwright and artist, Anthroposophy is a spiritual path that respects the freedom of each individual, through a holistic understanding of body, soul and spirit.

2. Brief description of the current provision

The Institution offers an accredited course in transpersonal arts for heath, wellbeing and therapy at levels 5 and 7. The Transpersonal Arts for Health and Wellbeing qualification, at level 5, is a one-year, full-time programme delivered face to face at the Institution's premises. The course can also be studied on a part-time, modular basis over two years, with students attending intensive teaching blocks twice each year in November and February.

On successful completion, students may be eligible to progress to the Transpersonal Art Counsellor course at level 7. Students are enrolled on a face-to-face, full-time programme over two years, attending classes for two days a week, with a further day in a community clinical placement. Students can also study on a part-time, modular basis during set intensive teaching blocks over four years.

Both courses are accredited as professional recognition awards by the City & Guilds of London Institute.

The Institution also provides a programme of short courses, ranging in duration from one to four days, in portrait painting, storytelling through art, sensory perception and running your own therapy business.

At the time of the inspection, there were 50 students enrolled. A majority of the students are enrolled on full-time courses. All students are aged over 24 and most are female. The majority of the full-time students are United Kingdom (UK) nationals, with around a third coming from other European and international destinations, including Hungary, Peru, Saudi Arabia, Finland, Ukraine, the United States of America (USA) and France.

On the part-time course, a minority of the students are UK nationals. The majority are from other European and international destinations, including the USA, Ireland, Russia and Spain. Around 14 students are currently booked to attend the next part-time modular level 5 course. The Institution has a total capacity for 70 students to be enrolled at any one time, based on a mix of full- and part-time delivery.

Students on full-time programmes are enrolled in September each year. Admission onto the part-time modular programme is once every three years, commencing in the Autumn term. Students must meet published entry requirements to enrol on each course. These typically include a first degree or relevant life experience, and evidence of sufficient English language competency.

3. Inspection process

The inspection took place remotely over two days using online communication methods. It was undertaken by one inspector, who met with the Head of the Institution, General Manager, Office Manager, the Chair of Trustees and other senior leaders. The inspector observed online teaching sessions, and held online meetings with students, tutors and the Placement Coordinator. The inspector carried out a virtual tour of the premises, including residential accommodation, and scrutinised relevant documents and electronic systems. All requested information was made available. The Institution cooperated fully with the inspection.

Comments

Managers have put in place a range of effective systems for monitoring and reviewing the Institution's performance. These include the audit and review of student and stakeholder feedback, scrutiny of the External Examiner's report, regular faculty review meetings for the senior management team, and analysis of student data. The resulting performance information is reviewed by the senior team and actions for improvement are identified and implemented promptly as necessary. The General Manager prepares reports for the Board of Trustees that include details of student numbers and future bookings.

8.2 Managers do not compile a formal annual report to present the outcomes of the monitoring and review arrangements and to enable a detailed year-on-year analysis of student satisfaction, retention, achievement and completion rates.

Senior managers carry out a strategic review process that considers the current strengths, weaknesses and threats to the Institution and its success. As a result, senior managers are able to use existing performance monitoring information to identify future actions and opportunities for growth and improvement. Managers recognise the value of a more formal, overarching quality improvement plan in helping them to prioritise and monitor the effectiveness of the actions taken over time.

INSPECTION AREA – TEACHING, LEARNING AND ASSESSMENT

	management team with responsibility for teaching, learning and assessment.
9.2	Classes are timetabled and rooms allocated appropriately for the courses offered. $\ \ \ \ \ \ \ \ \ \ \ \ \ $ resources.

This s	tandard is judged to be:

Comments The Head of School has overall responsibility for academic management, supported by a Senior Lecturer and other members of the senior management team. The Head of School is appropriately qualified, with a higher degree in therapy and education and additional postgraduate qualifications in creative supervision and art therapy. She is also very experienced, having been in post at the Institution for over 20 years, and also works as a play and art therapy supervisor.

The Head of School provides highly effective and consistent academic management of the courses and effectively manages an extensive programme of visiting tutors. This ensures that the students benefit from the diverse expertise of a range of tutors, who are recruited and allocated effectively to modules based on their significant professional skills and experience in a range of art, therapy and well-being areas. These skills and experience include counselling skills, building therapeutic relationships, practical art skills, storytelling, working with children, adolescents and the elderly, palliative care, and supporting clients with mental health needs or special needs.

Classes are timetabled effectively and allocated to appropriate teaching and learning spaces, for example an art workshop or studio, or a classroom space that allows students to discuss, debate and share their experiences.

Appropriate arrangements are in place for the acquisition of academic resources, for example art materials and library book stock. A dedicated annual library budget is available for academic staff and visiting tutors, to ensure that academic resources are current and fit for purpose.

This standard is judged to be:
Students benefit from well-qualified and experienced vocational tutors who use their skills, expertise and subject knowledge well to deliver engaging course content. Visiting tutors are recruited from a wide range of professional disciplines that complement the course content and learning outcomes. Most visiting tutors are current art and therapy professionals, who continue to practise in their related professional fields as child and adult psychotherapists, therapeutic art counsellors and artists.
Tutors use their significant vocational backgrounds and experience to deliver engaging teaching and learning sessions. For example, students developing their counselling skills benefit from the expertise and guidance of a very experienced lecturer, accredited counsellor and registered Gestalt psychotherapist. Students developing their practical art skills in stone carving benefit from the significant expertise of a professional international artist and sculptor.
The Head of School carries out regular peer and joint observations of teaching and learning, providing detailed written feedback to tutors that highlights good practice and provides practical suggestions to guide improvements where required.
Full-time staff have access to an appropriate budget to support the costs associated with their CPD activities. All tutors are invited to attend the regular evening guest lectures. These cover a range of classical and contemporary art and therapy topics and take place throughout the academic year. Most visiting tutors also maintain their professional skills as current practitioners, working in a range of art and therapy settings, or running their own private practice.
Tutors use their skills well to plan learning sessions that fully engage and motivate students and meet their individual needs and preferences. The tutors encourage students to apply their skills in different contexts, making use of case studies and scenarios to help students link theory with practice. For example, in a session on therapeutic orientation and modality, students were encouraged to practise their communication skills through role play with potential employers. This enabled students to develop their confidence and clarity in articulating their professional style and therapeutic approach.
12. The institution provides students and teachers with access to appropriate resources and materials for study
This standard is judged to be:
The Institution provides students and tutors with the necessary resources, learning materials and study spaces required for each course. Where relevant, students are provided with art materials, such as clay, oils, inks and paper. They also have access to an on-site art shop, which provides a broad range of art materials at wholesale prices.
International students on the part-time modular course are set independent learning tasks to complete between their intensive teaching blocks. They are provided with copies of useful handouts and resources before returning to their home countries. Academic support is provided through online individual and group tutorials using video-conferencing tools. Managers have identified that additional access to a greater range of online learning resources would be helpful for part-time international students, to better support their studies between on-site, residential teaching blocks.
The visiting tutors benefit from the support of the Office Manager with regard to the printing and collating of any teaching resources required for classroom sessions. While on placement, the placement providers are required to pay for, or provide, all materials and equipment required by the students to carry out their work.

Students receive appropriate assessment and feedback on their performance and progress, which are
